Third Barracks In College Area Is Burned Last Night

CITY FIREMEN are shown in the doorway of the third of four barracks at Murray State College, which have been burned in the past several weeks. The fires are believed to have been set by an arsonist.

Murray firemen were called last night about 10:30 to a burning barracks on the Murray State College campus. This is the third barracks to be burned on the campus in recent weeks.

The fire had good headway by the time firemen arrived, however it was quickly brought under control. The barracks had been sold only yesterday to Country Boy Stores.

There were originally four barracks located next to the Carr Health Building, but a firebug is believed to have set fires in two of them. The fire last night is also believed to have been set intentionally.

An odor of coal oil or gas was detected in the blaze last night, which led investigators to believe that the fluid had been used in setting the fire.

An empty gas can was found at the end of the barracks. The night watchman at the college had checked the barracks only one hour before the fire.

The barracks that burned last night was empty, since an auction yesterday had disposed of all contents. Both barracks were also sold.

When firemen arrived on the scene the fire was burning fiercely from the center to the west end. Only the room next to the stadium was not burning.

It was established that the call did not come from the phone booth from which calls relating to the other two barracks fires had come.

The phone number is known however.

Khrushchev May Bid For Stalin Role

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, July 10 — Experts piecing the recent Kremlin shakeup together said today Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev apparently failed to see eye-to-eye at an important stage of the party's power battle.

If Bulganin made a miscue the old Bolshevik may barely have escaped being purged himself.

Some evidence indicating a recent change in Bulganin's stature in the Soviet Communist Party hierarchy has been detected even though he is now in Czechoslovakia on tour with Khrushchev.

Cooling Breezes Strike Europe

LONDON, July 10 — Cooling breezes from the north Atlantic today brought a measure of relief to Europe, which has sweltered in the grip of a 10-day heat wave that claimed more than 400 lives.

Only in Italy, where police estimated at least 200 persons had died, were temperatures in the 90's forecast. Elsewhere weathermen reported temperatures dropping rapidly as the cool air front moved inland.

Italy was hardest hit by the scorching sun which sent the mercury soaring to record highs. The heat turned three homes for the aged in Milan into death pits for 65 men and women Tuesday. Shocked civic authorities ordered air conditioning equipment installed in the homes as soon as possible.

Coming after the deaths of 16 other aged in homes in Venice and Bologna, the Milan tragedy sparked demands for reappraisal of the buildings housing old folks.

Vienna police reported 46 persons died from sunstroke, drownings or in accidents attributed to the heat during the past week. Millions of dollars of crops were burned in the fields by the blazing sun in Vienna, recorded (Continued on Page Three)

Compromise On Rights Bill Said Still Not Sure

Here Is Summary Of Right Issue

WASHINGTON — Summary of main issues in the Senate debate on civil rights:

Purpose of Bill
To protect the civil rights of persons within the jurisdiction of the United States. Proponents contend its primary purpose is to protect voting rights of Negroes in the South. Opponents claim its language is broad enough to permit use of troops to enforce racial integration in schools and other public places.

Basic For Fight
Supporters contend the legislation is necessary for protection of constitutional rights of all Americans regardless of race. Opponents contend it gives the federal government, in the person of the attorney general, "autocratic" powers to enforce civil rights as he sees fit and break down the southern social system based on separation of races.

Jury Trial
The bill would empower the attorney general, through civil law procedure, to obtain federal court injunctions against violations of civil rights. Persons disobeying such injunctions would be liable to a fine and jail sentence by a federal judge without a jury trial. Opponents contend this would be depriving persons of their constitutional right of jury trial.

Boy Scouts Pour Into Valley Forge

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. — Boy Scouts from across the nation continued to pour into historic Valley Forge Park today for the fourth national Boy Scout jamboree.

Scouts from Texas and other warm climates expressed surprise at the coolness of Pennsylvania weather, but came "prepared" with sleeping bags and extra blankets.

About 32,000 Scouts were expected to arrive today and Thursday with the official opening of the jamboree scheduled for Friday when the "roll call of the Scout regions" will begin.

The first large contingent of Scouts to arrive Tuesday at the camp-site were about 780 from Texas. They were followed by 300 Scouts from Seattle, Wash., and then by a trainload of 250 boys from San Bernardino, Calif., and 500 more from Dallas, Texas.

Russell Calls On President To Discuss Issues Of Bill

WASHINGTON, July 10 — President Eisenhower assured the South today that the administration has no intention of launching a "punitive expedition" under its proposed civil rights law.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the southern fight against the controversial rights bill, took the opposition's case to the White House today.

"He apparently failed to win Eisenhower's agreement to any major compromise. But he said the President's mind is 'not closed' to a 'clarifying' amendment."

"I found no intention of purpose on his part to go on any punitive expedition against the South," the Georgia senator said after the 40-minute meeting.

Declines Details
Russell declined to go into details of what kind of amendment the President would consider. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said after a White House session Tuesday that his party would oppose confining the bill to a simple protection of voting rights.

Russell requested the meeting with the President after Eisenhower told his news conference last week that he did not understand certain clauses in the administration's civil rights bill. The President also had said he could not understand Russell's fears about the bill.

"We both have a much better understanding of the other's views," Russell said after the conference.

But he refused to say whether a civil rights compromise now is more likely.

He said that in the course of his discussion with the President he emphasized some implications of the pending measure that Eisenhower "hadn't considered."

The meeting came as Senate Republicans tightened party discipline and sought to maintain a solid front in the face of Democratic disunity over the bill.

GOP chieftains were reported to feel certain the Republican Party has established its claim to sponsorship of the civil rights bill and will win credit for its passage. The measure breaks through an expected southern filibuster.

Therefore, the Senate GOP leaders asked Republican senators

Food And Cars Top Local Consumer Buying

(Special to the Ledger & Times)
NEW YORK, July 8 — In Calloway County in the past year, food store operators and auto dealers succeeded jointly in snaring a major part of the money spent in local retail establishments.

The two pacemakers accounted for 52 cents out of every dollar spent at retail. Elsewhere in the United States the combination attracted only 43 cents and, in the State of Kentucky, 45 cents. The findings are by the Standard Rate and Data Service. They are contained in a comparative survey of the buying habits of consumers in every section of the country.

The breakdown shows that housewives in Calloway County spent freely for food, using 20 per cent of their available money for it. They bought better grades and bigger quantities than before.

As a result, the stores selling meat, fish, baked goods, vegetables and the like had a good year, with receipts totaling $3,917,000. Their volume in 1955 was $3,648,000.

The amount is only for food bought for home consumption and is exclusive of money spent in eating and drinking places.

Big spending was in evidence, also, in the automotive field. In purchases of new and used cars, boats and farm machinery. Local outlays in this direction totaled $6,174,000 in the year. They represented 32 per cent of all retail buying.

Most other outlets for consumer goods profited, also, as consumers, bolstered by larger incomes and in a buying mood, spent more money than ever before.

Local stores selling general merchandise had sales totaling $1,635,000, equal to 8 cents of the retail dollar.

Home furnishings stores accounted for $634,000, another 3 cents of the dollar.

Apparel shops did $507,000 in the year, amounting to nearly 3 cents.

The consumer, and what he feels and will do, have become the most important key to continued economic well-being. His buying whims can mean the difference between a good year and a bad one. Today he is confident. He feels his job and his income are secure. As a result, he is going right ahead with his spending, which is keeping the wheels of industry humming at a prosperous clip.

Miss Kleckner and William E. Hopkins Are Married At Madisonville Methodist Church

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hopkins

In the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends, Miss Catherine L. Kleckner, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Stanley Kleckner, Madisonville, became the bride of William E. Hopkins, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Davy Hopkins, 233 South 12th Street, Murray, at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, June 9, in the First Methodist Church, Madisonville.

A large white altar of greenery and a matching basket of white gladioli and daisies stood at either side of the altar, flanking two seven-branch candelabra holding lighted tapers, which formed the background, centered with the shining cross.

Dr. Byron Mackey was organist for the occasion, using the traditional wedding marches, and Donald King, organist, sang "I Love Thee" before the plighting of the vows.

Dr. William E. James read the beautiful double ring ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of Chantilly lace and filmy layers of tulle over a white dress. The bride's hair was styled in a high, wavy, and the bride's veil was a long, light-colored tulle, with a graceful sweep to the floor, richly designed with insertions of the lace, and worn over a white dress. A crown of lace and seed pearls held her finger-tip veil of illusion, worn with blusher veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses, lilies, and white carnations, and showered with streamers of white satin and lace.

"Something old" was a hankie, "something new" was a hankie, "something borrowed" was a hankie, and "something blue" was a hankie. The bride's hair was styled in a high, wavy, and the bride's veil was a long, light-colored tulle, with a graceful sweep to the floor, richly designed with insertions of the lace, and worn over a white dress. A crown of lace and seed pearls held her finger-tip veil of illusion, worn with blusher veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses, lilies, and white carnations, and showered with streamers of white satin and lace.

Each wore a headband of white daisies and carried a bouquet of white daisies tied with yellow ribbons. Robert Hopkins, of Murray, was his brother's best man, and ushers were Messrs. Edward Neil Orange, James T. Craft, and Maurice Crass Jr. of Murray.

Mrs. Kleckner wore a dress of pale pink linen with insertion of lace, white picture hat and accessories. Mrs. Hopkins chose a dress of pale blue lace over a white dress with white accessories. Both wore corsages of white roses.

Reception

A delightful reception for 100 guests followed in the church social hall, where the bride and groom were seated at a table. The bride wore a becoming light blue cotton dress with harmonizing accessories and white orchid corsage for traveling. The dress was styled with a round neck outlined in lace, flowerlets studded with pearls and rhinestones, and matching design scattered over the full skirt. Her picture hat was of white straw, topped with white lace.

The bride is a graduate of Madisonville High School and is employed in the office of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Hopkins is a graduate of Murray High School and Murray State College, and is employed as manager of Southern States Cooperative here.

Out-of-Town Guests Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding included Messrs. Sam Calhoun, J. W. Cathey, Maurice Crass Jr., Robert Hopkins and Marilyn, Frank Robert Grogan, Robert, Kenneth Smith and Sherry, C. L. Sharborough, Messdames Paul Grogan, Lindsey Robert and Linda, Ereta Pugh, Mr. Harold G. Beaman, and Mrs. Ann Calhoun.

Attendants Entertained On Wednesday evening the bride-elect entertained her attendants for a delightful supper dinner at Wayne's Fine Foods.

NEW YORK — Illustrating how potentially dangerous the world is to "sensitive" people, an expert listed today 10 common objects from toothpaste to dandruff — that may cause allergies.

Dr. H. Harold Gelfand instructs non-specialized medical colleagues in where to look for the causes of allergy flare-ups which usually are no as plain as the victim's runny nose.

Hog bristles may go into toothbrushes. Little bits of the skin of camels and sheep may remain in camel hair coats and wool garments just as a little rabbit skin or goat skin can lurk in felt or plush. Just a little bit of any of these prime allergens are quite enough to give the miseries to the allergic person sensitive to them.

For instance, some are sensitive to gums of vegetable origin. Yet karaya gum is in some toothpastes, in griddle cakes, in cheddar cheese and cake-icing mixtures, in mustard, and in some brands of prepared potato salad and salad dressings, Gelfand said.

Odeur-Producing Flare-Ups It is not only what the allergy victim may have breathed, or eaten, but what he may have inhaled in the form of odors—such as the odors of fresh peas, beans, and garlic. These odors also produce allergic flare-ups in sensitive people, Gelfand said.

And, then, there are insects. Some allergic people are allergic to the protein which a bee or mosquito plant in the skin when they bite, and for those people he bee's venom, and the mosquito's skin puncture are of much lesser importance than the allergy-excitant protein. Fleas and bed bugs can give people an allergic reaction.

So can just touching things. For instance, adhesive pastes may contain an allergy-excitant gum. So may artificial flowers.

DIFFICULTY OF IMPEACHMENT

Senator Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) is in favor of impeaching "almost all" of the nine members of the United States Supreme Court because of recent decisions which freed Communists convicted of conspiracy to overthrow the United States government, opening F.B.I. files to accused subversives, and curbs placed on Congressional investigators.

Chances are that his suggestion will not gain much serious support, but there are indications that Congress will move fast to defend its own prerogatives against court infringement. And rightly so. It also might grant President Eisenhower's request for legislation to defend the executive branch of our government, including F.B.I. It might be said on behalf of the controversial decisions that we may live long enough to consider them in the light of history and declare them good, so far as intent is concerned, regardless of possible harm that can result if they are faithfully followed.

Congress has outlawed the Communist Party in the United States and for that reason it is impossible for the layman to understand how the Supreme Court can release Communists who have been convicted for membership in the party which is pledged to the overthrow of the government.

Still the Supreme Court is the last resort of the individual. As a court of equity it has the power to free a person who may be the victim of prejudice, or misunderstanding. A member of the Communist Party could conceivably be innocent of an intent to overthrow the government, even though his party is pledged to do everything possible to do so.

And another difference we sometimes find it difficult to understand is that there is no law against overthrowing the government through legal means. American Communists, (like Socialists, Prohibitionists, States Righters or Bull Moosers), may feel they can spread enough propaganda about the "workers' paradise" behind the Iron Curtain to eventually undermine the government from within and take it over through a bloodless revolution by means which are thoroughly legal. They have done it in several other countries, and as repulsive as the prospect is, it is not in violation of any law unless it be the Smith Act which the Supreme Court decisions have wiped out.

If impeachment of the Supreme Court could be determined by a popular vote we believe "almost all" of the members would be overwhelmingly impeached. It can't be done except by Congress, and then only for cause reflecting on the integrity of the members. We don't believe many Congressmen and Senators seriously question the integrity of any of the justices.

If their decisions are wrong they are errors of the head instead of the heart. And they are not likely to be impeached because of them. If Congress, and the President, don't like their decisions they will have to offset them through legislation — not through impeachment.

HOLLYWOOD — One of the more interesting background stories coming out of Hollywood lately is about Bonnie Guitar, whose persuasion was sufficient to have Gale Storm make a record of her song for Dot Records even though Dot already had done one version of it by Miss Guitar.

It's virtually unheard of, in these days for a record company to make a record of a number and then "cover" its first recording with a second, different version of the same song. But Miss Guitar is a determined person.

The record is the hit, "Dark Moon," of which Miss Guitar is part owner. She turned out a "country" version of it for Dot Records, and she is now working on a "pop" version to add to her firm's ever-growing country-western division.

They talked it over. Miss Guitar liked making the record but reasoned that it had a much better chance of becoming a hit with a "name" singer doing the vocal. She asked Wood to have a popular version done with Miss Storm even though it might lessen chances of the Guitar record.

Miss Storm turned down Miss Guitar's plan as relayed by Wood. She said she felt the Guitar record should be given every chance possible.

Then persuasive Miss Guitar, undaunted by Miss Storm's good sportsmanship, saw the singer personally. Exactly what they talked about, and who said what is not known.

All-Star Game Is Tale Of Wrong And Second Guessing

By ED SAINSBURY

United Press Sports Writer—ST. LOUIS—Wrong guessing and second-guessing told the tale of the All-Star Game, a 6-5 win for Casey Stengel's American League team to break a two-game, victory streak by Brooklyn Dodger manager Walt Alton and the National League.

Stengel didn't want to start rookie right-hander Jim Bunning at Detroit Tuesday. And he waited to keep Boston's Ted Williams in left field for offensive punch.

He wanted to open the game with Cleveland's veteran Early Wynn and he would have, except that Wynn pitched seven innings Sunday and Stengel feared he would be tired.

So Bunning was the standout of the 12 hurlers who appeared. He retired nine men in order and got credit for the win when his mates got two runs in the second inning. Wynn gave up three hits and two runs later in 1-3 of an inning.

Stengel's strategy with Williams, he let the Boston star step to the plate four times, and he walked once and went out three times. Then, nursing a 3-2 lead, he put Chicago's Minoza in left field for defensive purposes.

Minoza Emerges Star—Minoza starred both on offense and defense. He rapped a double off the right center field wall in the ninth inning to drive home

Al Kaline of Detroit with what proved to be the winning run.

Defensively, Minoza turned in two key plays. When the National League was threatening to tie in the ninth inning, Hank Foiles was on second base after a single and a walk to Gus Boff.

Don Mossi struck out Eddie Mathews and Ernie Banks lined a single to left to score Foiles.

But Minoza played the ball expertly and when Bell tried to go to third base, Minoza threw perfectly to Frank Malzone for the second out as Banks took second.

Stengel brought in his own Yankee reliever, Bob Grim, when Gil Hodges pinch hit for the National League, and Grim threw only two pitches. The first was outside. The second was lined to left field, where Minoza made a short run to catch the ball and the game.

"If Williams had been in there," some onlookers said, "he wouldn't have made that throw and he wouldn't have caught the ball."

Alton Second Guesser—Alton was the target for the second guessers. Why didn't he order Mathews to bunt with no outs, two runs in, the tying runs on first and second?

"How'd I know Banks would hit?" the Dodger manager asked. "If I had, I would have."

National League starter Curt Simmons, appearing in the All-Star Game for the third time, was the losing pitcher as he gave up a single to Mickey Mantle, a walk to Williams, a single to Vic Wertz and a walk to Yogi Berra in the second inning. Then with one run in, Lew Burdette came in. And though he got two men out, he walked Harvey Kuenn to force in another score.

But Skowron knocked in the fifth run, advanced on Jack Santoro's wild pitch, and scored on Yogi Berra's single.

In the ninth, only Pierce began the winning surge with a single and he got to second when Ned Scheenbaum, booted Gil Achenbach's grounder for an error.

At Leads Series 14-0—Nellie Fox sacrificed and both runners scored on Kaline's single. A White strike-out the 9-1, 7 American League to do so, but Minoza's double was the finishing punch.

The National Leagueers netted two runs on singles by Williams and Ed Bailey and Gus Boff's pinch double in the seventh off Wynn.

Then their rally fell short in the ninth. Stan Musial walked and Mays drove him home with a triple and scored himself on Pierce's wild pitch. That set the stage for Foiles to bat for Bailey and keep the chase alive.

It was the second victory in the last eight games for the American League and the 14th overall against 10 National League victories.

Show How To Save Skid Row Bums

By ROBERT STRAND

United Press Staff Correspondent—SACRAMENTO, Calif. — How do you save a skid row bum for himself and society?

Vern Zook, an air force veteran from Indiana, has come up with a new solution — put him in a business of his own.

"Work is the best therapy in the world," he says. "Zook with me work must go spiritual recovery. The skid row creature must return to God."

To prove his theory, Zook opened a restaurant run by tramps. It was so successful he opened a second in one of the city's better neighborhoods and is using profits to buy a house to shelter his crew.

Men Study Bible—He calls his operation Christian Service Enterprises and holds regular Bible classes to help his men build new attitudes toward life.

The difference between Zook's scheme and the conventional rescue mission is that it provides regular employment in an atmosphere of understanding. The more common rescue mission, he says, emphasizes evangelism and provides odd jobs when available. When there are none, their skid row inmates depart with their earnings to buy a bottle.

Zook spent five years running such a mission in Stockton, Calif., convinced that was the answer, he proposed his new approach to the board of directors, but they thought business and religion don't mix.

Things Going Well—"I believe you can't divorce the two," says Zook.

His Sacramento experiment has lasted only a year now but things have gone very well. Customers show special interest in the workers. Zook and his wife themselves work up to 10 hours a day and take out only $30 a week for themselves.

His greatest problem is that some of the men just don't show up for their shifts. On skid row only one man in a hundred fights his way back to be a useful member of society, Zook guesses.

But for the 1 per cent, we're willing to put up with the other 99.

LONG DISTANCE JETS—VICTORIA, Tex. — The 19th Air Force announced today that four supersonic F-100 jet fighters from Foster Air Force Base had completed a 2,600-mile non-stop flight to Hawaii.

He announced also that he will conduct a crusade in Charlotte, N. C., in the fall of 1958. Graham has lived in Charlotte and maintains his home in Montreal, N. C.

Graham's 25-minute talk to the men of high finance was not to be his first on how "money corrupts," as he puts it. He has said repeatedly in his Madison Square Garden sermons that materialism, "the greed for and love of money," is one of America's great failings.

He has also said that "The accepted rule is to make money as lying and cheating, stabbing competitors in the back, all for the sake of making more money."

Graham announced Tuesday night before his Garden sermon that "there's a good possibility" he will conduct a short crusade in Buffalo, N. Y., this fall, as a "logical follow-up" to his New York Crusade.

CHAPTER 25

IT WASN'T EASY, telling the story of my life to the world. I hoped to marry, but I had to. It was a complex thing, tied up with my feelings for Sarah. I'd been loyal to the Box P, and the memory of Joe P. For some reason I had made up my mind. Nela Mathers must know most everything about me before I asked her to marry me.

"That's about all," I said finally, "except that for a couple of years or more, I've loved you, Joe. When Dogbone showed up, I started riding for Joe, and Dogbone took my place."

There was so much more. I couldn't tell her how Sarah and I had drifted apart, and about Sarah's accident and her hair turning white. I'd told enough. Sarah knew how much I owed to her. That was the part I thought she ought to know.

I said, "I guess this is about as unromantic a proposal as I start-an ever made, but what I start-an ever was that I love you and I want you to marry me."

I wasn't looking at her now. I couldn't. I hurried on. "I'm not trying to make you think I'm anything great. You know how it is between me and your dad. I'm not going to back up. Not even for Sarah. I don't have any education. No schooling. I mean, if we have to leave the Box P and you're my wife, you might starve and I don't know anything but ranch work. With what Joe left me when he died, and with what I've saved, I've got a little over $1,000 in the bank in Canon City. I own a horse and saddle and a gun and my clothes. That's all."

"Will," Nela reached out and took my hand. "Will, can't you stop talking and listen for a while? Don't you want the answer to your question?"

I did look at her then. Her face was close to mine, and I heard her whisper: "Will, I want thing else in the world. Today. Tomorrow. Next week. Any time you say."

I put my arms around her and kissed her, and she clung to me with passionate fierceness, giving me an unspoken promise, and when she drew back, she said: "A woman doesn't have much chance. Will, I've loved you for so long. Then the old fear began gnawing at me. I'll raise the devil when we tell Sarah and your dad. Let's get married now and wait them later tomorrow."

Her eyes widened as she thought about it. "May be she was afraid just as I was. There were so many things that might happen. Will, we can't lose each other now. We just can't."

I told him to get a room for us at the hotel, and arrange for the preacher. I left then, and bought new clothes, including the first store suit I ever owned, and a shave and bath, and put on the new suit. Then, smelling of cologne, and with my suit unbuttoned, I went to the hotel and found Nela waiting for me in the lobby, talking to Sawhill.

When he saw me, he turned from her. "Will, you're a lucky man. My only regret is that I didn't see her before you did."

Nela, shy for the first time since I had met her, stared at the floor. "Will, I don't have any clothes, and it's too late this evening to buy them. Let's wait until morning."

"Don't wait," Sawhill said. "It's like diving into a cold pool. If you start feeling it with your feet, you'll never make the dive."

Nela laughed uneasily, and I said, "You're in a good position to talk, Ben."

"I should know if any man does," he said. "Now listen to me, both of you, and make up your mind to do what I say. A hotel room is no place to spend your wedding night."

He put a hand on my shoulder and bowed to Nela. "I have gone to some pains this afternoon, and I'll be mighty put out if I don't get my way. I have a house that is yours as long as you're in town. My housekeeper cleaned up this morning, so it's all spic and span. House swept and dusted. And supper is on the stove for all of us right now. He pulled a big silver watch from a vest pocket, studied it, and announced: "In five minutes the preacher will be there. Let's start."

Nela held back. "We can't put you out like this, Mr. Sawhill. A hotel room is all we expected."

"Miss Mathers," he said severely, "the only way you can put me out is to refuse me. I even have a bottle of champagne. If you make me drink all of it, I'll lose my practice."

"He means it," I said, and Nela reluctantly nodded agreement.

A rig was waiting outside the hotel. In less than five minutes we were in Sawhill's house, and were being married in his front room with his housewife and stuffed owl on the mantel and the framed motto on the wall, "God Bless Our Home." I looked away from it, for I was thinking of Sarah, and of Ben Sawhill, who loved her, and how it would have been if she had agreed to marry him.

"I don't want you to get mad at me, Will," Nela was waiting to tell him, "but I'd like to tell you something about Sarah."

"Sure can," he said. "I haven't got a thing to do."

of first place in outlining Soviet industrial policies and progress at Communist Party Central Committee meetings.

The Tables Turned

In July, 1955, and again in December, 1956, Bulgarian gave important reports on Soviet industry and management at Central Committee meetings. Khrushchev apparently barely survived the December meeting when Mikhail G. Pervukhin was put in charge of a new Soviet industrial set-up.

When the Communist leaders met again in February, however, Khrushchev overturned the December decisions. Bulgarian has not been the prime spokesman on industrial matters since the December meeting.

There is evidence Bulgarian is more conservative than Khrushchev. At Leningrad last week and Bulgarian delivered a much milder speech than Khrushchev. He also referred to Georgi M. Malenkov, Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Lazar M. Kaganovich as "comrades."

Trio May Be Expelled

Malekov, Molotov and Kaganovich now may face expulsion from the Communist Party and even criminal charges following their ouster from their top Kremlin posts, officials here believed.

They said if Khrushchev moves to liquidate any of the three, it would indicate he was bidding for absolute power on the Stalin pattern. Thus far Khrushchev has not sought to take over the life-and-death power held by the late Josef Stalin.

But he has packed the Communist Party's high command with his own supporters in a move to choke off further opposition. He increased the top presidium from 11 members and 7 alternates to 15 members and 9 candidates members.

Of the 24 new members, 30 were Khrushchev's direct subordinates on the Communist Party secretariat. Seven others were regional party leaders.

Other congressional news:

Hells Canyon: Legislation to authorize a federal dam at Hells Canyon on the Snake River between Idaho and Oregon faced probable death in the House Interior Committee today. Supporters engaged in eleventh-hour maneuvering to save the bill, but opponents claimed enough votes to kill the measure "once and for all."

Schools: Supporters of a federal school construction program sought a green light from the House Rules Committee to take their $1,500,000,000 "compromise" plan to the House floor for a vote. But chances of House approval seemed dim. The measure would authorize the federal government to spend 300 million dollars a year for the next five years to help states build needed classrooms.

City Helps In Building Driveways

ROCKWILL, Md. — City officials in this growing suburb of the nation's capital will supply plans, instruction, and some labor to homeowners who want to build their own driveways.

The program was adopted because the public works department was swamped with phone calls from citizens seeking advice on driveway construction and because many home-made driveways didn't pass inspection.

With city help the homeowner can build one of several types of driveway ranging in price from $75 to $150—about half the cost of a contractor-installed trip.

World War I
Buddies Reunited
In Hospital

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Laurie Grove, a patient in Kennedy Veterans Hospital here, heard a story twice about the Battle of Belleau Wood in June, 1918 from different men.

So he brought about the reunion of two ex-Marines after 38 years. The reunion involved Coy Roberts and Miller Jones, patients with Grove in the same hospital.

During the fighting in Belleau Wood, Miller was wounded by shrapnel, and lay in an exposed position. Roberts ran to his aid and carried him to a dressing station on his back, then rejoined his unit. Later, Roberts was hit at Soissons, and the two friends lost track of each other.

In different wards at the hospital here, neither knew the other was nearby until Grove remembered that each had told him the same story.

HOLLYWOOD — Without a doubt I have just finished this year's most enviable film assignment. I had the privilege and pleasure of playing husband to Sophia Loren, Italy's answer to Marilyn Monroe, in Paramount Studio's production of Eugene O'Neill's immortal classic, "Desire Under the Elms."

But the crushing blow is that my young whipper-snapper of a son, Tony Perkins. Perhaps I should be grateful for small favors, but this puppy love stuff is nauseating.

Our sympathy is extended to the Clarence Vincents and other members of the family since the death of their mother who has been an invalid in her home in Murray so long, but who has been so faithfully attended by her daughter and son, Clarence, who for four years has gone to spend the nights with his mother.

Our sympathy is extended to the Clarence Vincents and other members of the family since the death of their mother who has been an invalid in her home in Murray so long, but who has been so faithfully attended by her daughter and son, Clarence, who for four years has gone to spend the nights with his mother.

Such was the enviable fate of Ramu in "The Baker's Wife," and hundreds of others.

But here in Hollywood it is different. While I am the breadwinner in "Desire," it is the very young Tony Perkins who ends up in the hayloft with Sophia.

But for the life of me I can't see what these young, able-bodied, handsome leading men have to attract the ladies compared to us more interesting, cuddly and worldly group that have our eyes glued to the actuary tables of life insurance charts.

More Sex Appeal
Hundreds of European women have told me there is more sex appeal in a man who can take them to exclusive clubs, select the proper rare vintage wines for any occasion and order their dinner in six different languages than being taken for a bicycle ride by younger more athletic escorts up Fleet Street to Trafalgar Square for "fish and chips" at Lyons corner house.

While these fictional dramatizations are always building up the young Casanovas and undermining the romantic abilities of the matured personalities, history proves that the world's greatest lovers were older men. Take Casanova, Don Juan, Celini and Caesar as examples.

It is said that women mature much earlier than men which means that they need much older men to keep them satisfied and happy. Personally, this sounds good to me. If any of you young men reading this story don't believe every word of what I am saying, wait another 20 years and I'll bet you'll be among the first to jump on the bandwagon. Are you listening Sophia?

Down
Concord Way

Here it is July and it's still raining. Yet we are so fortunate to have escaped the tornadoes and hurricanes which have caused so much death and destruction elsewhere.

A crowd attended the household sale at the late Wilkerson farm Saturday. In spite of all the neighboring reunions at such occasions, it is always sad to see the breaking up of a home, and a house emptied of all loved accumulations of the years, especially when the family circle is dissolved by death.

We heard that George and Ellis Shoemaker bought the Wilkerson farm.

Bro. Joiner and family were guests of the Barnett Montgomeries Sunday after church at Sulphur Springs.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Ruth Montgomery is a patient in Murray hospital this week.

Our sympathy is extended to the Clarence Vincents and other members of the family since the death of their mother who has been an invalid in her home in Murray so long, but who has been so faithfully attended by her daughter and son, Clarence, who for four years has gone to spend the nights with his mother.

Mrs. Eula Miller visited her son, Walter, and also Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lovins last week end.

Medames Lloyd Spiceland from Dearborn, Mich., and Sandra Spiceland of Obion, Tenn., last Thursday, and also went to Tip-topville and Reelfoot Lake.

But our visit to the Walter Millers' renovated country home with its well tended garden, strawberry and peanut patches, watermelons and truck patches was even a greater surprise and certainly an inspiration, for that dream house came by the determination and hard labor of a couple with a vision.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris of Pennsylvania, New Jersey spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Lovins.

Mr. and Mrs. Oury Lovins of Michigan, visited relatives in Chattanooga and Calloway last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Montgomery and children spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Gordon proves that the world's greatest lovers were older men. Take Casanova, Don Juan, Celini and Caesar as examples.

It is said that women mature much earlier than men which means that they need much older men to keep them satisfied and happy. Personally, this sounds good to me. If any of you young men reading this story don't believe every word of what I am saying, wait another 20 years and I'll bet you'll be among the first to jump on the bandwagon. Are you listening Sophia?

returned with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nance, and other relatives.

I can just sit on my porch and see cars from so many different states, and the one reason I would wish to be in the store business is because I miss meeting the many people who used to stop in, but I am enjoying my leisure.

I hear people so often complain of being dissatisfied with where they live, and see them running here and there for a vacation, and perhaps some might say I have no ambition, but Concord suits me. I see other places more prosperous, and houses more convenient, but I do not have to go else where seeking contentment. I have just about everything right around me that others are looking for far and near.

Just like I can be satisfied with a glass of cold water, because I have never tasted a Coca-Cola nor became dependent upon soft drinks or cigarettes. I can read about off places and use my imagination about scenes in geographic magazines, and have no desire to visit them.

So no one need pity me if I have been nowhere on my vacation. I am where I had rather be than anywhere else in the world.

Memphis Youth
Looks To Stars

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Seventeen-year-old James Marquis is a stargazer with a more than passing interest in the "wild blue yonder."

The husky high school senior has won national recognition for his work in astronomy but plans to study aeronautical engineering in college.

Jim already has built two telescopes, and in the summer, lectures at the Memphis Pars Commission's art planetarium.

Jim's largest telescope is a six-inch and has a homemade camera attachment he uses to photograph the stars.

An essay he wrote on astronomy won him first place in the Tennessee talent search, and he received honorable mention in a national search.

See actual road-test proof!
DODGE outpulls
"other two" low-priced trucks!

Here's the scientific way to measure the actual pulling power a truck can deliver to its rear wheels. All three low-priced trucks were hooked up, one by one, to a special dynamometer truck. Each was comparably equipped and test-loaded.

Super-sensitive gauges inside the dynamometer truck register the maximum pull of each truck at 10 m.p.h. Insets in photos above show actual gauge readings in each case. To convert these readings into pounds, simply multiply them by three.

The results are conclusive evidence that Dodge PowerGiants give you a third more pulling power than either of the "other two" low-priced makes. And this is just one of a series of tests that prove Dodge is the best truck of the low-priced three.
